ONE OF THE BIGGEST NATURAL PARKS IN EUROPE

The Cazorla, Segura and Las Villas mountain ranges have been granted the official protective status of a Natural Park, which means they are the perfect destination for those seeking peace and tranquillity amidst well-preserved landscapes full of natural life. The park is almost entirely free of aggressive outside interferences that might destroy its harmony, or man-made intrusions that could tarnish its purity.

This vast territory was one of the first in Andalusia to be declared a natural park and certainly deserves its status: it is the largest forested area in Spain and the breadth of its biodiversity is truly breathtaking.

The fact that it remains home to so many species of plants and animals is because their habitat is preserved to ensure the park is as attractive as possible: the rivers and lakes are clean, the forests are dense and the peaks are lofty.

Visitors will also discover towns with castles and white-washed streets and come across unexpected villages in the heart of the mountain ranges.

The Sierras de Cazorla, Segura y Las Villas Natural Park sets the standard for taking care of the natural environment.

The Largest Natural Park

Covering an area of almost 210,000 hectares, the Sierras de Cazorla, Segura y Las Villas Natural Park is the most extensive protected space in Spain and the second-largest in Europe. It was declared "Biosphere Reserve" (1983) by UNESCO, "Naturak Park" (1986), a Special Protected Area for Birds" (SPAs) (1987) and "Hunting Area" (1960).

Extending this protected area, there are two smaller adjoining natural parks in the provinces of Albacete and Granada: the Calares del Mundo y de la Sima Natural Park to the north and the Sierra de Castril Natural Park to the south. Together they cover some 31,000 hectares, whereby you will be able to visit over 240,000 hectares of unbroken protected countryside during your visit: an area that is roughly half the size of the entire Autonomous Region of La Rioja.

You will experience a sense of freedom upon entering this vast landscape: the freedom that comes from finding yourself in a large, unspoilt territory and the freedom you will have to choose from amongst the wide variety of options in terms of areas to visit, routes to explore and diverse landscapes to enjoy. The park is a world by itself.

FLORA

PLANTS UNIQUE TO THE PARK

Our park is extremely unspoilt and has been recognised by experts as the second-richest area in Europe in terms of plant life. It boasts 35 endemic species that are not found anywhere else in the world, in addition to a further 110 species that are only found in Andalusia. The endemic species include the beautiful Cazorla violet (Viola cazorlensis), which only grows on certain rocks and has become one of the park's true icons. The Cazorla narcissus (Narcissus longispathus), which grows near streams, is the largest wild narcissus found anywhere in the Iberian peninsula; other plants whose nomenclatures belie their park origins are the Cazorla stork's bill (Erodium cazorlanum) and the Cazorla geranium (Geranium cazorlense).

ENDANGERED PLANTS

There are many plants in the park that are at varying degrees of risk of extinction, as officially recognised in the Andalusia Catalogue of Endangered Species. Twelve species have been officially declared as being threatened with extinction, including the yew (Taxus baccata) and the birch (Betula pendula ssp. fontqueri), while a further 25 are classified as vulnerable: these latter include the holly bush (Ilex aquifolium), the St Lucie cherry tree (Prunus mahaleb) and the Guelder rose (Viburnum opulus).

In a world which is losing its biodiversity at an ever-increasing rate, a plant sanctuary such as our park acquires enormous importance. Therefore, when you come to the park you are entering a true haven for European flora and a hot-spot of biodiversity in terms of the ecology of the Mediterranean. You will find that helping to preserve this environment by getting to know it and respect it is a truly satisfying experience.

ABUNDANT NATIVE WILD LIFE

The statistics leave no doubts regarding the great diversity of the wildlife in these mountains. While it accounts for just 0.41% of Spain's total area, the percentages of vertebrate animals native to Spain that live in the park are remarkable and underline the area's status as an enclave with an extraordinary concentration of wildlife:

Sources: La Guía de Flora y Fauna (A Guide to Flora and Fauna), Rufino Nieto Ojeda and José Miguel Nieto Ojeda. Frondosa Naturaleza (Lush Nature), Joaquín Araújo.

Some of the park's animals are highly symbolic of the ecological importance of these mountains, such as the aforementioned bearded vulture (Gypaetus barbatus).

the Spanish algyroides (Algyroides marchi), a member of the lizard family that is not found anywhere else in the world and lives near to the park's high mountain streams; the Spanish moon moth (Graellsia isabelae ssp. ceballosi), a large moth considered to be one of the most striking in Europe and which is only found in certain mountainous parts of Spain and France; the Betic midwife toad (Alytes dickhilleni), endemic to certain mountain ranges in southeast Spain; and Cabrera's vole (Microtus cabrerae), which has been declared a critically endangered species in Andalusia and only inhabits mountainous areas that remain damp all the year round.

LARGE MAMMALS

The Sierras de Cazorla, Segura y Las Villas Natural Park owes a large part of popularity to the fact that it is one of the easiest places to observe large wild mammals in their native environment.

Visitors can frequently spot mountain goats (Capra pyrenaica ssp. hispanica) in craggy areas and mouflon (Ovis musimon) on barren, rocky slopes. Herds of fallow (Dama dama) and red deer (Cervus elaphus) are very abundant in the pine forests and at the start of autumn the rutting and bellowing of the large stags is an unforgettable experience.

The wild boar (Sus scrofa) is another common species in the park, even becoming a familiar sight around tourist accommodation when food is left within its reach.

SMALL MAMMALS

The red squirrel (Sciurus vulgaris ssp. segurae) is the easiest mammal to spot in the park as it jumps with great agility from branch to branch through the pine trees, and leaves the unmistakable trace of gnawed pine cones on the ground and in the middle of pathways. The red squirrels you will see in the park are a native subspecies known as the Segura squirrel.

The great number of predators, which never find themselves short of prey, is a sign of the vitality of the park's ecosystems. There are eight species of carnivorous mammals, including the badger (Meles meles), marten (Martes foina), genet (Genetta genetta) and the little-seen wildcat (Felis sylvestris). Foxes (Vulpes vulpes) are very abundant, while the clear rivers that flow through the park are home to one of the jewels in its crown: the otter (Lutra lutra).

You may also spot amiable hedgehogs (Erinaceus europaeus) and sleepy garden dormice (Eliomys quercinus), in addition to a wide variety of bats; some of these are at risk of extinction, such as the long-fingered bat (Myotis capaccinii).

BIRDS OF PREY

The great number of birds of prey that soar above these mountains is further evidence of the sound environmental health of the park, and no fewer than 23 of the 24 diurnal species native to the Iberian Peninsula can be observed here. Of these 23 species, 15 reproduce within the park. We are rightly proud of the park's populations of golden eagles (Aquila chrysaetos) and peregrine falcons (Falco peregrinus), the fastest animal on the planet: the park is home to more than 20 breeding pairs of both species. Less common is the Egyptian vulture (Neophron percnopterus), which has been declared at risk of extinction in Andalusia. With more than 500 breeding pairs in the park, the griffon vulture (Gyps fulvus) is far easier to spot, while nothing is more exciting than catching a glimpse of the imposing silhouette of the bearded vulture (Gypaetus barbatus), which are being reintroduced into the park.

Each spring, short-toed snake eagles (Circaetus gallicus) and booted eagles (Hieraaetus pennatus) migrate over from Africa with clockwork precision to nest in the park's forests, where they compete for food with resident species such as the northern goshawk (Accipiter gentilis) and Eurasian sparrowhawk (Accipiter nisus).

Night-time also brings its fair share of winged predators: six of the seven species of nocturnal birds of prey native to the Iberian Peninsula inhabit the park, including the majestic eagle-owl (Bubo bubo), whose deep hoots can still be heard echoing through the undergrowth. A much more common sound in the forests is the call of the tawny owl (Strix aluco), while the scops owl (Otus scops) can be heard in almost all the towns and villages of the park.

A WINGED WORLD

Many other species of birds live in the park. Its vast forests are home to two species of woodpecker: the great spotted woodpecker (Dendrocopos major) and the green woodpecker (Picus viridis), which is known to locals as the caballete, or "little horse", owing to its unusual call resembling the neighing of a horse. One bird that has become particularly well-adapted to life in the park is the common crossbill (Loxia curvirostra), whose asymmetrical beak can open pine cones with ease. Examples of the small birds that can be found in the forests include the short-toed treecreeper (Certhia brachydactyla), Eurasian nuthatch (Sitta europaea), common firecrest (Regulus ignicapillus), long-tailed tit (Aegithalos caudatus), great tit (Parus major), coal tit (Parus ater) and the extremely abundant blue tit (Parus caeruleus) and crested tit (Parus cristatus).

The presence of the Eurasian dipper (Cinclus cinclus) demonstrates just how clean the park's rivers are, while the common kingfisher (Alcedo atthis) is a frequent sight as it dives beak-first into the water in search of small fish. Thickets and riverbanks are ideal places for spotting golden orioles (Oriolus oriolus) with their elegant, contrasting black and yellow plumage, and you may also hear the unmistakable call of the nightingale (Luscinia megarhynchos).

The rockier areas of the park are also home to birds that have adapted to live in such environments, such as the crag martin (Ptyonoprogne rupestris) and mottled swift (Tachymarptis melba, previously classified as Apus melba), both insectivorous summer migrants, along with the garrulous red-billed chough (Pyrrhocorax pyrrhocorax), alpine accentor (Prunella collaris) and red-rumped swallow (Hirundo daurica).

ORNITOLOGY

Cerrada de Utrero Gorge

Path Details

On foot: Approximately 1.5 hours.

Difficulty rating: Easy.

Location: Located 21 km from Cazorla, on the main road leading to the Sierra, just a few metres from Vadillo (old forest town). Once you pass Vadillo, on the right and before the bridge over the Guadalquivir River, the path is on your left (signposted).

Description of the route:

On a maintained footpath with railings, the route is almost circular. After uphill and downhill terrain, the path brings you to the wall of the former dam. It continues towards the waterfall of the Arroyo Linarejos which can be viewed from the opposite bank of the Guadalquivir River. This stream cascades down to form a beautiful lagoon. To your rear you can see the Peñón del Lanchón (a huge limestone mass) and in front is a rocky cliff inhabited by unusual rock-dwelling birds. The path continues until it comes back out onto the same main road, just a few metres from the start of the path.

Description of the landscape:

By the river you will see Holm oaks scattered between rocks, turpentine trees various types of willow, and box trees.

Some advice:

There is a car park next to the Cerrada de Utrero kiosk. Youngsters should be accompanied by an adult for the first part of the walk. Avoid the summer months as you might not see the waterfall (the Linarejos stream may be dried up). Due to the danger of possible loose rocks, you are advised not to walk too close to the edges.

El Chorro. Includes a hide for wildlife observation.

Path Details

On foot: On foot from La Iruela, approximately 11 hours (there and back).

On foot from Quesada, approximately 12 hours (there and back).

Difficulty rating: Easy.

Location: El Chorro is 12.5 km from La Iruela and 13 km from Quesada.

From La Iruela, you must go into the town (400 m) until you come to some signposts indicating Riogazas to the right, bringing you out onto the track. From Quesada, you must take the road towards Cazorla. After 4 km, you will come to a crossroads. Take the surfaced road on the right where there is a sign for "El Chorro, 9 km". The road takes you uphill, bringing you to a control booth which marks the beginning of the path.

Description of the route: From La Iruela: Take the main road, passing through a control barrier after 4.5 km, and continue until 10.7 km, where you go past a house. If you have a look over the edge you will be able to see El Chorro. It can also be seen from other angles if you continue a further 500 m (El Chorro Forest House) or a further 700 m (the information board). From Quesada: once you pass the control barrier, follow the road uphill for 2 km until you come to a crossroads where there is a sign for "Nacimiento del Guadalquivir" (the source of the Guadalquivir River). Without following this sign, just by this crossroads, you will be able to see El Chorro.

Description of the landscape:

This is mainly composed of pine trees and rocky crags. A few Holm oaks and bushes grow close to the path.

Some advice:

The magnificent views can be fully appreciated on clear days. Take water and food with you.

Río Borosa River.

Path Details

On foot: 9 hours (there and back).

Difficulty rating:

Easy at the beginning, moderate in the middle section and difficult towards the end.

Location:

You must take the main road that goes to the Sierra passing through Cazorla. After about 15 km there is a turning to the left signposted for Arroyo Frío. Take this turning to the left. Go through the village of Arroyo Frío and continue until you come to the Torre del Vinagre Information Centre.

(17 km). Turn right at the Centre and continue past the fish farm until you come to a car park.

Description of the route:

The route begins in the car park. You cannot get lost as the route follows the river either on one side or the other. The path is wide at first and then narrows as you go along it. The path goes into the Cerrada de Elias gorge and in some sections it goes along a wooden platform raised above the river bank.

Description of the landscape:

The mountainsides are mainly covered with Aleppo pine Trees and shrubs and bushy trees such as Laurustinus, strawberry trees, turpentine trees, mock privet and rockrose on the path, mingled with riverside trees and bushes. The endemic carnivorous plant Pinguicola vallisnerifolia (Spanish Butterwort) is present on the steep sides of the gorge.

Some advice:

You can get water from two drinking fountains: one at the beginning and another at the top of the gorge. Take food with you. There is very little shade at the beginning. The greatest diversity of birdlife can be spotted on the first part of the walk.

THE RIVER GUADALQUIVIR

The River Guadalquivir begins in the area known as Cañada de las Fuentes, in the midst of a forest of Corsican pines. There, at an altitude of 1,350 metres, it embarks on the 667-kilometre journey that will take it to the Atlantic ocean, draining 65% of Andalusia on the way. This river, which the Romans called Betis and the Moors the Río Grande, or Great River, has formed a northeast-facing valley that is both the largest and most iconic in the park and includes the spectacular Cerrada del Utrero gorge just a few kilometres from the river's source. Beyond the gorge, the valley widens out and gives rise to a series of natural beauty spots that are among the most visited parts of the park. The final stretch of the valley is home to the Tranco reservoir, which dams the river and forces it once again into a rugged defile, from where it turns sharply to the west towards the Jaen countryside and the great Andalusian basin.

Before it reaches the Tranco dam the Guadalquivir is joined by the River Borosa, which has its source in the Valdeazores lagoon and descends by a total of 650 metres during its 11-kilometre course, creating a large number of waterfalls and crystal-clear pools along the way. This river is easily accessible on foot and is notable for the magnificent Cerrada de Elías gorge, where it has bored a hole through the rock. It is swelled by the water from a number of waterfalls, which, like the well-known Linarejos waterfall, are in particularly strong flow during the spring thaws.

The River Aguasmulas joins the Guadalquivir some kilometres down from the Borosa and like the latter is also a short mountain river, just eight kilometres in length. A walk along this river is also highly recommended as it is a comfortable route through extraordinarily picturesque landscapes, particularly at its source, where it rises beneath the impressive rocky outcrops of Banderillas at an altitude of 1,993 metres.

The higher sections of the River Guadalentín is another of the outstanding parts of the park, as it includes a number of canyons and ravines flanked by serried peaks, all of which reach or exceed an altitude of 2,000 metres. One of the most spectacular natural features of this river is the extensive forest of Portuguese oaks it passes through on its way to the La Bolera reservoir, beyond which it flows beyond the borders of the park and into the River Guadiana Menor, which in turn flows into the Guadalquivir.

The intricate mountain range of Las Villas boasts a wealth of fast-flowing rivers and streams, many of which have the prefix "Aguascebas" and are only differentiated by the second part of their name: Aguascebas Grande, Aguascebas Chico, Aguascebas de Chorrogil (which has a beautiful waterfall), Aguascebas de Gil Cobo, and so on. The first of these is the most spectacular, as it features two breathtaking ravines: however, the Aguascebas de Gil Cobo, which descends a full 770 metres during the scarcely six kilometres of its course, also has a number of waterfalls and ravines, including the renowned Cerrada de San Ginés. Some of these mountain rivers flow into a small reservoir, which is also called Aguascebas.

In addition to its mountain rivers, the Guadalquivir basin is also criss-crossed by a number of others whose courses follow a less demanding route. Chief among these is the Guadalimar, which means "Red River" in Arabic and was named for the reddish earth from its clay banks that is washed into it by the rain. The Guadalimar rises in the province of Albacete, in the foothills of the Segura mountains. Inside the park it flows through olive groves in the north and is swelled by tributaries of a considerable size, such as the Onsares, Trujala and Beas rivers, all of which originate in the valleys of the lower mountains.

The Guadalimar is joined by the Guadalmena, the river which marks the northwest boundary of the county of Segura and which, although it does not comprise part of the protected zone, is nonetheless important owing to the reservoir of the same name and because the landscape it flows through the final eastern foothills of the Morena mountain range are entirely different from those found in the park, despite their close proximity. The horizon here is filled with peaks of a modest altitude, smooth and rounded in shape and covered with holm oaks and Mediterranean scrub.

GEOLOGY

Fossils showing that this area was once a sea, spectacular mountains and rocky outcrops, folds, faults, ravines, caves and chasms can all be seen in the natural park and speak of a story that challenges our minds to navigate through timescales far beyond our normal perception.

Geologically, the Sierras de Cazorla, Segura y Las Villas Natural Park forms part of the mountainous area of Andalusia known as the Baetic Cordillera, which extends from Cádiz to Jaén and continues through the province of Albacete to the Levante, where it disappears below the surface of the sea and later emerges to form the Balearic archipelago.

The park's mountains are the best representation of the Prebaetic section of these mountain ranges, formed mainly by carbonate rocks, limestone and dolomites, with an abundance of fossils and intermediate marl and detrital layers, mainly sandstone.

The Segura Mountains: the Internal Prebaetic

The Internal Prebaetic is mostly made up of the Segura, La Cabrilla and El Pozo mountain ranges and is the part of the continental platform that is furthest from the old continent. The terrain is characterised by successive folds that were caused by a process of tectonic detachment, albeit with extremely marked changes in tectonic and paleogeographic direction. Although there are some outcrops consisting of material from the Jurassic period, those corresponding to the Cretaceous are much more common and are for the most part made up of alternating marl, limestone and dolomite layers.

All these materials indicate that many, many millennia ago this area was home to a shallow marine ecosystem, from which a number of peaks emerged. The basin was deeper towards the southeast, as evidenced by the abundant marine-fossil remains that can be observed in the area. The valleys of the Segura mountains and the northeastern parts of this region also contain Triassic materials, such as red marl and gypsum.

The Cazorla and Las Villas Mountains: the External Prebaetic

The External Prebaetic is made up of the Cazorla mountains and the four ranges that make up the Las Villas system, in addition to the western section of the Segura mountain range. It is the area that lies closest to the Morena mountain range and the vast plateau of the Spanish Meseta, i.e. the old continent. Jurassic outcrops predominate, particularly dolomites and limestone, with interlayered clay and marl. Few Cretaceous materials are present. Towards the west there are a great many overlapping faults and narrow folds, which give rise to a succession of crests and undulations.

478 KM OF WALKING ROUTES INSIDE THE NATURAL PARK

The Woodlands of the South Hiking route through the Sierras of Cazorla, Segura and Las Villas

This is longest hiking route in the largest natural area of Spain. The Woodlands of the South path offers a 478 kilometre sign-posted route, taking in 21 main stages and 11 offshoots. Furthermore, 3 alternative routes are presented, each composed of two sections - marked with a "v" on the map - that will help you to subdivide the route, adapting it to your interests and the time available to you. You decide how to do it!

The route takes in the sources of the River Guadalquivir and the River Segura and will lead you through the mosaic of landscapes found in these highlands: high mountain peaks, castles, woodlands, rivers and waterfalls, traditional walkways, high plains, hamlets and villages that remain inhabited, historical sites, olive groves and orchards. It is a long route, enabling you to discover the flight of the bearded vulture, the clearest waters, the conversation of nomadic shepherds, the way of life in mountain hamlets.... a series of experiences and the authenticity of the most extensive mountain ranges in Andalusia await you along this route.

The majority of the stages commence and conclude in locations that are close to essential services - fountains, hamlets and villages, camp sites and other forms of accommodation, camping areas and areas lying close to roads. Other sections include only emergency refuges, constructed to ensure such services in these areas of the GR. Plan your itinerary well as certain stages pass through very isolated areas with no telephone coverage that are often subject to high mountain conditions that may leave you cut off (snow, winds and temperatures below zero in winter, or a lack of water and permanent insolation in summer), whereby you should consult conditions before commencing the route and take the necessary provisions with you.

You decide where to begin the route, how many stages you will complete during this visit to the park and how to divide up the hike. Alternatively, you might decide to spend your entire holiday period completing the entire route. Never stray off the indicated route, follow the rules governing GR and refuge use and heed the instructions of personnel working in the natural park.

Respect the regulations governing protected spaces as you walk along the path or make use of the route's infrastructures.

Landscapes filled with memories await the steps and the empathic gaze of the hiker in one of the most important natural spaces in the south of Europe.

Laguna de Valdeazores Hiking Route

From the Las Navas track near the hill of Collado Bermejo, a forest trail leads off to the left and is closed to vehicles by a barrier: this is the start of the route. It is an easy descent through Corsican pines, ferns, ashes, maples, gall oaks, holm oaks, elms, a number of yews and holly trees, where the most characteristic fauna of the area can also be observed. 3 kilometres on from the starting point you will reach the stream known as Arroyo de la Reina, which you must cross in order to rejoin the trail. It is a stream that begins up in the high mountains, and makes its way down through narrow mountain passes.

Félix Rodríguez de la Fuente Hiking Route

We cannot speak of the Sierras de Cazorla, Segura y Las Villas Natural Park without remembering the extraordinary figure of Professor Félix Rodríguez de la Fuente. Since 2001, the year in which this tourist route was developed under the guidance of the renowned naturalist and writer Joaquín Araujo, the Félix Rodríguez de la Fuente Route (RFRF) has become a veritable monument to the best moments of the TV series El Hombre y la Tierra ("Man and the Earth"). In 2011, 30 years after Professor Rodríguez de la Fuente died in an unfortunate accident, the RFRF was revamped with the addition of new information panels and signage, which allows visitors to travel the route in complete symbiosis with nature and without missing a single detail.

La Presilla Hiking Route

At kilometre 12.5 on the A-315, past the Restaurante Vadillo in the direction of Quesada, you will come to a sharp bend to the right in the road next to the impressive Santuario de Tíscar shrine. The shrine is located next to the River Vadillo, at the site of a beautiful mountain pass and where the entrance to the stunning Cueva del Agua ("the Water Cave") can be found. Before the bend straightens out again you will see a lane leading off and up towards the right; this marks the start of the route.

ROUTES BY CAR

Route by car: Cazorla - Cerrada del Utrero - Torre del Vinagre

Description

History and nature along the banks of the Guadalquivir river are the suggestions for a route of many contrasts that leads to some of the most significant areas of the Sierras de Cazorla, Segura and Las Villas Nature Reserve.

This route traverses the first 20 Km of the A-317 road from Hornos to Pontones and Santiago de la Espada. It is a highly panoramic stretch of road with seven viewpoints where you can stop for stunning views over the surrounding scenery. Every viewpoint is equipped with a parking area, benches, waste-bins and wooden fences. Some of them also have picnic tables. Attractive tile panels help you to interpret the landscape and learn more about certain aspects of the local natural and cultural heritage.

Route by car: Tranco Reservoir

This 43 Km route follows one of the most popular roads of the Nature Reserve. Most of the way runs along the left bank of the Tranco reservoir, where the quiet harmony of the huge sheet of water contrasts with the grandiose pine-wooded mountains all around it. It is no wonder that most of this area is under special protection as the Bujaraiza Reserve Area.

Route by car: Hinojares - Quesada (Route of the Nasrids)

Although the route passes through natural areas of extraordinary beauty, the main attractions on this route are historical and cultural. You will cross an area that was once a frontier land between Moors and Christians, remaining as such for three centuries until Granada was definitively conquered in 1492. The route is essential for a proper understanding of the culture and uniqueness of the lands that made up the former Settlement of Cazorla. The Settlement was created in 1231 and depended on the Archbishopric of Toledo until it was abolished in 1811 by the Spanish Cortes or Parliament in Cádiz.

FEEL THE BEST OF THE NATURE IN THE BEARDED VULTURE MOUNTAINS

Cazorla, Segura and Las Villas mountains, with its 214,000 ha is the largest natural park in Spain. The area is also a Special Protection Area for Birds, and since 1983 it is declared by the UNESCO as Biosphere Reserve.

Covered by native forests with many endemic species of flora and fauna, all this area is included in the Red Natura 2000. It is also one of the 34 biodiversity hotspots on the planet. In accordance with Appendix I of the Habitats Directive, this area includes 23 types of habitat, 3 of them priority areas, as well as some fifty species included in Appendix I of the Birds Directive, 4 of them priority species: Imperial Eagle, Bonelli's Eagle, Lesser Kestrel and Black Vulture.

However, the most emblematic species is the Bearded Vulture (Gypaetus barbatus). In scarcely 200 years, the European population of Bearded Vulture was reduced to a few hundred pairs in the Pyrenees and some isolated pairs in Corsica and Crete. The last population of the Bearded Vulture to become extinct was the Andalusian group in 1986.

Since then, we have been working hard, in collaboration with the reintroduction project of the Alps. A very extensive groups of specialists from Spain, France, Italy, Switzerland and Austria have been working together to get their objective. In 1996 the Bearded Vulture Breeding Center of Andalusia was created, within the natural park in Cazorla. In 2006 the first 3 birds were released. Since then it is possible to see again this magnificent raptor, with nearly 3 metres wingspan, bigger than the Golden Eagle, flying again in the South of Spain.

Come here for to see the magnificent Bearded Vultures in these beautiful mountains!

WE CAN ORGANIZE YOUR TRIP.

We will recommend the best accommodations, the best trips, the best guides. Everything to make your trip as easy and successful as possible.

You will visit, in addition to the amazing mountains, the Bearded Vulture Breeding Centre. If you want you can join our technicians in the field monitoring and in the GPS satellite tracking.

HISTORICAL VILLAGE IN SPAIN. CAZORLA

Name Given to Inhabitants: cazorleños or cazorlenses

Population: 8,132

Although no exhaustive studies have been carried out into its origins, the first variant of the name Cazorla is believed to be that mentioned in the 12th century by Yakut, who wrote about a city in Al-Andalus, between Jaén and Baeza, with the name Quasturra.

Cazorla is located at an altitude of 886 metres above sea level. The municipality is split into two different landscape types: to the east, two thirds of its total surface area is covered by mountain areas of great natural and environmental value, with replanted pine trees and a rich and wide variety of flora and fauna; and, to the west, the land is used as farmland for growing olives and arable crops. In this municipality, the most important of the region of Sierra of Cazorla, inland nature-related tourism has developed well and is now one of the most important economic activities in the area, along with the growing of olives. In addition to the main agricultural crops, sheep farming and forestry are also carried out here.

Churches and Convents

Church of San José

Parish Church of St Joseph

This is the main church of the Parish of Santa María. It dates from the middle of the 17th century, and was used as a convent by nuns of the Order of St Augustine (Agustinas Recoletas). Like almost all of the region's religious buildings, the church no longer contains any major works of art, as a result of the disentailment process, on the one hand, and events of the Civil War, on the other.

The church is home to some beautiful carvings by Navas Parejo and Castillo Lastrucci, and six large copies of works by El Greco, painted by Rafael del Real, a reminder of the fact that the Adelantamiento de Cazorla used to belong to the archbishopric of Toledo. The main altarpiece was made by Valeriano Martínez, from Burgos. The church's façade is simple, and the doorway features two reliefs which came from the old Iglesia de Santa María. One depicts the Nativity, and the other, God the Creator.

Church of St Francis

This church belonged to the Convent of Franciscan Friars. It is a 17th century Baroque-style building with a simple façade made of a combination of brick and tuff. Inside, the church is built in the Jesuit style, with side arches, a straight apse, a single barrel-vaulted nave with lunettes and a dome on pendentives over the transept. The church is home to a number of altarpieces, paintings (by Castillo Lastrucci and Jacinto Higuera) and frescos dating from the post-Civil War period.

However, the church is also home to one of the town's most venerated images: the Santísimo Cristo del Consuelo (Most Holy Christ of Consolation). The painting has an interesting history. At the end of the 16th century or the beginning of the 17th, there was a painting that showed the image of a man crucified with three nails, with a plain background and two people praying at his feet.

Church of Our Lady of Carmen

This church was a temple for the Order of the Company of Jesus, and later a hospital run by the Discalced Carmelite Friars. It was designed by Blas Antonio Delgado in the 17th century. The church has a single barrel-vaulted nave with lunettes, a transept with a hemispherical dome on pendentives, and a number of side chapels. The design is similar to that of a Jesuit or counter-reformation church. The main entrance is reminiscent of the mannerist style and is crowned with a large coat of arms of the House of Bourbon. The tower is square at the base with an octagonal top, and is similar to the models designed by Vandelvira, inspired by the designs of other architects from the province.

Old Convent of Mercy

This convent was built in the 17th century, and is currently home to Cazorla's town hall and theatre. Like many other old convents, its façade is made up of a combination of bricks and stone, and is of a simple architectural design. The most well-conserved elements of the convent are the bell tower, the columned courtyard (which has recently been refurbished), and the chapel, which is now used as a theatre and cinema. The cloister is also used for temporary exhibitions.

Old Convent of St John of Penance

This convent, once home to nuns belonging to the Order of Santa Clara (St Clare), was founded in 1513 by García de Villarroel, nephew of Cardinal Cisneros. It has a Renaissance-style façade with a simple design and an elegant semi-circular arch with pilasters. The convent was once used as a prison and now houses a Youth Hostel. Its interior structure is therefore completely different from its original design, although the façade remains the same.

Montesión Monastery

The monastery was originally an eremitic settlement, founded in 1625 by the Presbyterian Julián Ferrer, and was similar to other hermitages in the province of Córdoba, which brought together hermits from the Order of St Paul and St Anthony, and was later known as the Desierto de Nuestra Señora de Montesión (Desert of Our Lady of Montesión).

It is located on the hill of the same name, close to the town. As it has been remodelled and added to so many times, the building has been made using a number of different finishes and qualities of materials. The chapel is its most noteworthy feature. Its foundations are formed by the rocks themselves, and its floor is quite irregular (due to the different phases of development). It has a single barrel-vaulted nave with lunettes.

Church of Saint Mary

It is the most important building of the county, known as the Adelantamiento de Cazorla. A Renaissance building in the heart of Cazorla. Designed by Andrés de Vandelvira or maybe his disciple Alonso de Barba, is built over the river Cerezuelo. Francisco de los Cobos was named Adelantado in 1634 thanks to the help of Charles V. He was not only the secretary to the king but also he had access to the best Renaissance architect, Andrés de Vandelvira. Famous for his buildings in Úbeda, Baeza and the cathedral of Jaén, he died in 1575 but the church was finished in 1589. It was one of his disciples, Alonso de Barba who finished the building.

The church has a single nave and side aisles with a slightly raised transept. The presbytery is covered by a half barrel vaulted ceiling with round windows. At its foot, there were two towers, but only one of them has survived.

Some of the magnificent original renaissance features which have survived include: the fine lobbed vaulted ceiling of the tower in the chapel dedicated to San Cristobalón; the half barrel vault with windows over the apse and the main altar; the doorway of the north façade which faces the plaza; and the doorway of the southwest or side façade with its round arch. Other architectural features of interest are the chapel of the sacristy, which contains a solid spiral staircase, and the balanced distribution of walls and windows or openings.

The church lies alongside the river Cerezuelo the course of which has had to be re-channeled. Although the design of the church is attributed to architect Andrés de Vandelvira, there are doubts about whether its construction was commissioned by the Episcopal church of Toledo or the Marquises of Camarasa. It is probably that the initial construction of the church was not fully completed and that the serious damages caused by the terrible storm and subsequent flooding in 1694 also further difficult the possibilities to finish it. In the 20th century it started being used as an auditorium.

The Church of Saint Mary (Iglesia de Santa María de Gracia), is a unique church build upon a river, thanks to the construction of a tunnel covering it.

A Renaissance Cathedral designed by the most important architect of his time in the province of Jaén, Andrés de Vandelvira.

Come and discover one of the most remarkable jewels of the Renaissance period; its history, art and the secrets which this monument has locked inside its stones and walls.

Despite many human and natural disasters which almost caused its destruction, this emblematic monument has won the battle against time.

Go into it to travel through its unique tunnel which joins the church and the plaza, whose fusion of art and nature makes us dream awake.

LA YEDRA CASTLE

Castillo de la Yedra Castle and the Alto Guadalquivir Museum of Popular Arts and Customs

This castle is also popularly known as the Castillo de las Cuatro Esquinas (“Castle of the Four Corners”) to differentiate it from the Castillo de Salvatierra, or Castillo de las Cinco Esquinas (“Castle of the Five Corners”), whose keep has a pentagonal floor structure.

The original castle was probably of Almohad origin, dating from the end of the 13th century. However, the current castle dates from the era of Archbishop Pedro Tenorio, who restored and strengthened the fortress in the 14th century, as it was under threat because of its proximity to the kingdom of Granada, and skirmishes between Christians and Moors were common. The castle is split into three different sections. The first is a Moorish alcazar (fortress), which was probably home to a small local population or a garrison. Ashlar turrets were added to the outside walls, which were made primarily of mud, after the Spanish conquest. The second section has been built using a wide variety of construction techniques, reflecting the many different reforms that have been carried out in the fortress. Above the door, you can clearly see the coat of arms of Archbishop Sandoval and the date 1606. Finally, the third section is made up of the alcazar, with its square keep, water tower and three rooms. These two sections were built by the Spanish over the course of the 14th century.

The castle lost its strategic and military importance in the 17th and 18th centuries, and did not become useful again until the Spanish War of Independence. During the disentailment of the 19th century, it became municipal property. It was later sold and became private property. Finally, in 1972, it was expropriated and restored so that it could house a Museum of Popular Art and Customs, which was opened in 1983. Two years later, the castle was declared an Historic Artistic Monument.

SALVATIERRA CASTLE , or Castillo de las Cinco Esquinas (Salvatierra Castle, or “Castle of the Five Corners”)

This castle stands on the top of Salvatierra hill and is quite difficult to reach. You can still see its pentagonal tower and the remains of the fortified walls.

Although some authors have written that the castle is of Arabic origin, this is unlikely, and it is more likely to date from the 14th century, when there was a boom in the building of large fortified towers and defences in the Christian territories next to the Kingdom of Granada, which were living a period of great success, leaving the Christians vulnerable to attack. It was declared an Historic Artistic Monument in 1985. It is not used for any purpose at present.

CASA DE LAS CADENAS

This small Neo-Renaissance palace was built in the 19th century on top of an old country house owned by the Marquises of Camarasa. It is one of the most notable privately-constructed buildings in Cazorla.

Its façade is surrounded by a set of columns linked by thick chains, or cadenas, which give the palace its name. The building has a large garden which covers a surface area of 12,000 m². The property is privately-owned.

Classified as an Historic Monument.

Toya Burial Chamber

This emblematic monument of the Iberian culture, which dates from between the 5th and 4th centuries BC, can be found on Cerro de la Horca, in the village of Toya near Peal de Becerro. Architecturally-speaking, no other structure has ever been found that can be compared to this one. The chamber has been built using large, regular ashlar stone blocks, and has been deliberately split into three different rooms. Two of these - the ones on either side - are, in turn, divided into two parts. The chamber contains stone benches on which grave goods and urns could be placed. The grave goods found include weapons, jewellery, Greek and Iberian pottery and the wheel of a carriage, which are now in the Provincial Museum of Jaén. It is clear from both the complexity of the structure and the valuable grave goods found inside that this was a resting place for the aristocracy. It was declared an Historic Artistic Monument by the Spanish Ministry of Culture in 1918.

Rafael Zabaleta Museum

Rafael Zabaleta was an avant-garde artist who was heavily influenced by the great art movements of his time: Matisse's fauvism, Cézanne's constructivism, Gris and Picasso's cubism, Chirico and Dalí's surrealism, etc... He was born in Quesada in 1907 and died in 1960. He is known for the interesting way in which he interpreted light and colour, as well as his bold outlines and rounded shapes. He studied with the great masters of contemporary painting, meeting Picasso, who influenced him a great deal.

As a result of the Franco regime, Zabaleta produced hardly any paintings before 1940. In 1942, the first exhibition of his work was put on in the Biosca gallery in Madrid, and he won the UNESCO 3rd Latin America Art Biennial prize in 1956. His paintings can be found in some of the most important museums around the world, in cities such as New York, Buenos Aires or Tokyo, but most of his work is still kept in his birthplace, Quesada. He died in Jaén in 1960.

The Museo Rafael Zabaleta is home to more than one hundred of Zabaleta's oil paintings, and another one hundred drawings and notes which show how the artist's style evolved from academic art, was influenced by cubism and surrealism, and developed into the expressionism of his later years. His works are quite varied, and include still lifes, portraits and landscapes, but his main source of inspiration was his home town of Quesada, its landscapes and the people who lived there. He painted large numbers of portraits of women and also produced many self-portraits. Sometimes he seems impassive, like a voyeur, observing the women he painted.

TWO CLOSE WORLD HERITAGE CITIES. UBEDA & BAEZA

Úbeda and Baeza were inscribed in the World Heritage List on the 3rd of July, 2003. thus, from this date on, Úbeda and Baeza were numbered amongst the most select cities in the world, cities where the human hand had constructed a unique and everlasting work. UNESCO drew attention to the cultural unity of these cities in the province of Jaén. UNESCO's report stated that Úbeda and Baeza, more than any other place in the world, exemplify the humanist Spanish Renaissance which exported its mudejar inspired postulates to places as far-flung as Latin America.

Baeza is the exponent of public architecture and religious institutions, whilst Úbeda is devoted to private architecture and civic institutions. For the most part, the art and monuments bequeathed by each city were produced in the 16th and 17th centuries. The two most important figures during this period were Francisco de los Cobos, secretary to the Emperor Carlos V and advisor to his son, Felipe II, and the architect Andrés de Vandelvira, the author of the most magnificent buildings in both cities.

ECO-HOSTEL AND ECO-CENTRE “EL CANTALAR” (Rural Hostel 1*)

Our company specializes in sustainable tourism, providing hostel style accommodation in Andalusian nature centres and activities which promote the conservation and appreciation of Spain's natural and cultural heritage. We offer unique experiences to discover some of Andalusia's most beautiful cities and Spain's biggest natural park: Sierras de Cazorla, Segura y las Villas.

El Cantalar Eco-centre is an outdoor activity centre with hostel style accommodation, situated in the heart of the Sierras de Cazorla, Segura y las Villas Natural Park. Here you'll find a friendly welcome and plenty of activities to help you enjoy the beautiful natural surroundings and discover the culture and traditions of our small, mountain villages.

Our centre is located in an old forest warden's house which was built at the beginning of the 20th century and forms part of the rich cultural heritage of this mountain area. Although it has been completely renovated as a country hostel and nature study centre, it still maintains much of its original structure and character.

Set in magnificent scenery, surrounded by forest-clad mountains in Spain's largest natural park and close to the source of the River Guadalquivir, El Cantalar is an ideal base for hiking, bird watching and other outdoor activities.

We offer a warm welcome to families, groups, hikers, school groups and everyone who wishes to enjoy and discover more about this beautiful area. We offer:

Accommodation and activities for families and groups (family rooms and hostel)

Nature study centre for school groups and summer camps.

Packages for groups and families including a variety of visits and activities.

Eco-centre with activities, guided walks and exhibition open to the public

Eco-café and eco-shop.

Our accommodation has a capacity for up to 16 in family rooms (quadruple) or up to 60 in hostel style accommodation (shared rooms with bunk beds). There are 2 large common rooms, open fire, television and wifi. In our dining room, you'll find good traditional home cooking, prepared from local products. We also offer organic and vegetarian options and cater for special diets.

CYCLING ROUTES

Cycling route: Sanctuary of Tíscar - Collado Zamora

Puerto de Tíscar is one of the most emblematic historical passes in these mountains, as the towers and watchtowers in the area show. The route starts at the Sanctuary of Tíscar, where a visit to the spectacularly beautiful natural temple of Cueva del Agua (Water Cave) is a must. Pedal uphill on the A-323 road in the direction of the Tíscar Pass, past the hill known as La Pedriza and the ravine Barranco de la Presilla on your right. 4.5 km further on, just before you arrive at the pass and Torreón de Don Enrique tower, turn off onto a track on the right in the direction of Loma del Rayal, which goes around Loma de los Picones.

Cycling route: Gil Cobo Recreational Area - Llanos de Jabalcaballo

Coming from Chilluévar, continue past the Aguascebas reservoir for about 8 km and then turn right at km 28 onto a secondary forest track or path where the road crosses a stream known as Aguascebas de Gil Cobo. This is where the route starts. You can also arrive at the starting point if you are coming from Charco del Aceite.

Circular Cycling route: Campos de Hernán Pelea

This route runs through the extensive karstic platform of Campos de Hernán Pelea, a plateau standing at 1600 to 1700 m above sea level that is a major underground reservoir for the entire Nature Reserve. This is a circular route that starts in Aldea de Don Domingo, a town you can reach by taking an asphalted road from the town of Santiago de la Espada.

Cycling route: Mirabuenos - Los Centenares

The route starts on the trail to Cuesta de Mirabueno, on the Llanos de Arance track, and consists of one linear section (there and back) and one circular section. The route starts at 4.6 km on the A-319 road, on a closed track on your right. The track climbs up through the three types of pine found in the Nature Reserve (Aleppo pine, Coriscan pine and European black pine) as you gain altitude. Half-way up you also go through a forest of magnificent ilexes.

TRANS CAZORLA

It is a journey of pure mountain bike that passes through the Parque Natural Sierra de Cazorla, Segura and Las Villas province of Jaén. Runs about 230km with 5900m positive slope where you can enjoy and suffer with the trails and montaréis trialeras why.

Starting from Cazorla, you will discover the nature reserve through the most emblematic places, but also the most deserted and lonely being this, the best way to see the wildlife of the park.

TransCazorla stages of the following features:

- Stage 1: Cazorla - Arroyo Frio. 52 km and 1700 m of climbing.
- Stage 2: Cold Stream - Don Domingo. 64 km and 1800 m of climbing.
- Stage 3: Don Domingo - Coto Rios. 57 km and 700 m of climbing.
- Stage 4: Coto Rios - Cazorla. 57 km and 1700 m of climbing.

2 +2 TransCazorla

ASTROTURISMO

The autumn sky

The Observatory Fresnedilla want to give everyone the opportunity to approach the major stars and constellations that can be seen in autumn. Just the sun, we can still see some of the wonders that keeps the summer sky: our own galaxy with over 200,000 stars and diversity of objects that can be seen in its immediate environment: Sagittarius and Scorpio.

double Stars

Most of the points of light we see in the night sky are stars, yes, but not usually occur in isolation, but rather can be said that most live (and born) in pairs. Double stars, therefore, are very common, being held together by the force of gravity and revolve around their common center. The observation of the orbits of double stars is the only direct method that astronomers have to weigh the stars. This time the Observatory presented a proposal Fresnedilla special observation, also incorporating the most striking objects autumn sky.

Geminids. Starfall

When we talk about meteor showers we have in mind those long hot summer nights where we usually enjoy the tears of San Lorenzo. However, throughout the year there are many meteor showers. They all have different backgrounds and activity level. In fact, correspond to the Geminids meteor shower of the higher incidence, although the time when we face makes them not so much media attention. We propose therefore devote a day to its observation and by the way, a visit to the skies last offered Fall.

OIL ROUTE

There are two main areas where olive groves can be found: the countryside and the mountains. Traditionally used for growing crops, most of the countryside has been turned into olive groves in the recent years. These are generally irrigation groves of the Picual variety. However, the number of groves of the Royal native variety is increasing in response to its growing demand. The mountain area holds rain-fed olive groves of the Picual and Royal variety alternated in a traditional distribution, which makes the extra virgin olive oils “Sierra de Cazorla” a distinctive product. The mountains preserve the character of the traditional olive groves with their ancient olive trees that create a genuine natural and cultural heritage. These groves are usually divided in small plots owned by individuals who manage all the farming themselves, from pruning to harvest. Within the borders of the Natural Park there is a growing area of ecological olive groves in which eco-friendly practices are carried out and which hold an extraordinary biodiversity of both flora and fauna.

There are different routes to visit the olive oil mills and the countryside surrounded by thousands of olive trees. The visitor can find a historic olive mill and the Regulatory Council of Protected Designation of origin “Sierra de Cazorla”, where the visitor can even taste the oil.

THE TAPAS ROUTE AND GASTRONOMY

The cuisine of the Sierra de Cazorla region has traditionally been very sober. Gastronomy here is defined by the region's climate conditions, and by its geographical situation. Homemade preserves, dried products from the vegetable garden (dried peppers, known as pajarillos), and salted meats from home-raised animals are the result of our culinary customs. A rich seasoning of spices is also characteristic, especially cumin, and all of this is complemented by the touch of quality added by the excellent oil produced from our olive groves (Royal and Picual).

Many vegetables and cereals are grown here which are also found in other regions, but to these we must add the bounty provided by the mountains and the abundance of rivers, which enriches our cuisine. Fishing in the rivers, game hunting and the gathering of wild fruits have given rise to particular dishes which are specialties of the mountains, such as trout, carne de monte (cured mountain meat) and niscalos en salsa (Milk-cap mushrooms in sauce).

The intense livestock farming in the region is also manifested on the table. Lamb and cheese made from sheep's or goat's milk appear in many of the dishes on offer in any restaurant. The species of sheep known as Segureña, a native species named for the Segura area which is highly valued for its quality, is bred here. The areas within the provinces of Jaen, Granada and Almeria which produce this type of lamb have worked very hard to secure the PGI (Protected Geographical Indication) as an official mark of guaranteed quality.

The raising of animals has always been a traditional method of subsistence. Slaughtering is normally carried out before the beginning of the olive harvest, in order to have food prepared and ready to be eaten while the work of harvesting lasts. The traditional way of preserving these foodstuffs was in earthenware jars, using animal fat and oil.

Currently there are a number of businesses involved in the production of traditional dried or cured meat from the area in line with particular guidelines of quality. As well as ham, there are other pork products, wild boar, deer and venison, and various pâtés, along with pork loin in oil and cheeses which are produced here. Some of these regional products are certified with the Natural Park of Andalusia Artisan Product quality mark.

The production of sweets and pastries is, like in other places, closely linked to many different feasts and celebrations. This is the case with hornazo (an Easter pie made from bread and egg) and the feast of the Virgen de la Cabeza in Cazorla, with market garden products and rosquillas (ring-shaped pastries) for San Blas in La Iruela, with roscos (another type of ring-shaped pastry) in the feast of Candelaria (Candlemas) in Peal de Becerro, and so on.

There are also many liqueurs from the area, thanks to the abundance of wild fruits available: pacharán made from sloes, and liqueurs made from blackberries, rosemary, etc. However it is the homemade wine known as vino de esparteña, a local speciality, which is especially interesting, as well as la cuerva, a local drink made from wine and sliced peaches, which has emerged recently in association with family celebrations.

Some of the most traditional dishes from the Sierra de Cazorla are gachamiga (made with flour and bacon), rin-ran (a potato-based purée), talarines (savory meat tarts), marinated carne de monte (cured mountain meat) and guíscanos or niscalos (milk-cap mushrooms) in sauce.

PARADOR DE CAZORLA

The Hotel is located in the Heart of the "Parque Natural Sierras de Cazorla, Segura y Las Villas", in the spot known as Sacejo. Its high location means it benefits from unbeatable panoramic views over the surrounding area with its abundance of pine-filled hillsides typical of the mountains. The quiet atmosphere and beautiful enclaves such as Cañada de las Fuentes or Linarejos waterfall make it a meeting spot for nature lovers.

The hotel follows typical Andalusian farmhouse tradition, highlighted to the exterior. The swimming pool has marvellous views out over the Nature Reserve and the pleasant lounge with its chimney breast to the inside is characterised by the bright light streaming in through the large windows.

Seasonal game forms part of the cuisine available at the restaurant with dishes such as wild boar in red wine and grilled venison fillets: Cazorla., Torres del Vinagre Visitors' Centre., River Visitors' Centre., Botanic Gardens., River Borosa., El Tranco Reservoir, Hunting Reserve, Hornos, Segura de la Sierra, River Guadalquivir Source, Ancient Yew Trees, Buitreras. Peal de Becerro (Toya Roman Ruins). Quesada (Zabaleta Museum). Nuestra Señora de Tisca Sanctuary. El Agua Cave. Tour around Monumental Cazorla. La Iruela.

La Iruela is an attractive town of steep streets and white houses, dominated by the silhouette of the Templar castle declared historical monument in 1985 - hangs on the dizzying cliffs that rise with the people. Near La Iruela is Burunchel, strategically placed under the rocky cliffs, as a prelude to give way to the port of Las Palomas and the high valley of Guadalquivir.

In this small town, peaceful and quiet, was built in 2001, the hotel El Curro, whose facilities have been recently refurbished to provide customers the highest quality during your stay. This is a four star country hotel with a family atmosphere where our guests are a member of this house.

At the reception itself, the visitor has the opportunity to access the most complete information and documentation about the park and its possibilities for active leisure. Taking advantage of the property is located in the countryside, an interesting option for anyone who wants to forget the car for a few days, is devoted to hiking around the village or go cycling (with the new proposal cycling tour "Field and Mountain Getaway" ) by different paths, starting from the hotel, we approach the mystery of Tragantía routes as in the Castle of the Ivy. Not a bad idea either pay a visit to the olive oil cooperative Burunchel, where you can taste and buy the magnificent oils produced in the region.

One of the outstanding service offered by this hotel is its restaurant, the cuisine based on typical local specialties like creamy rice with wild mushrooms and fresh vegetables, or daggerboard back with Rin-ran, bush meat in the traditional , rags,....

Pilgrimage in honour of Our Lady St Mary of the Head

Feast Day of St Hesychius, Patron Saint of Cazorla
La Caracolada, Cazorla

The evening of the 14th May, a curious festival is celebrated in Cazorla in honour of their patron saint, San Isicio (St Hesychius). The tradition is to decorate walls and house fronts along the route of the procession with tiny oil lanterns made from snail shells, which are put in place using clay to form figures. From the shrine of San Isicio to the Plaza de Santa María, and on some walls and houses in the part of the town in front of the shrine, these lanterns are lit as night falls. On this day you can see people wearing the traditional costume of the mountains and you can enjoy a glass of cuerva, a local drink made from wine and peaches, and eat habas (beans) next to the shrine.

La noche de la Tragantía (The Night of the Legend of La Tragantía)

This is a re-enactment of the legend of a woman who was imprisoned beneath the Castillo de la Yedra in Cazorla, who turned into a snake. Popularly known as la Tragantía, the celebration of the night of Saint John in Cazorla has a magical feel. It is a special night full of surprises as it moves around the town, with historical figures, music and dance, stories, magicians, humour and theatre, which continues into the small hours. Eventually it arrives at the castle for the final showdown: the much-feared Tragantía makes her appearance.

Date: Saturday closest to the 24th June.

Bluescazorla (International Blues Festival)

Since its modest beginnings in 1994, when it played host to national bands and some three hundred festival goers, the blues festival Bluescazorla has been increasing in both size and quality, currently attracting around five thousand visitors on each on the three days of the festival, which is usually held at the end of July. Bluescazorla has become a top-class national blues event, and is an excellent meeting place for fans, which year after year extends across our borders becoming a point of reference for European blues. In the past, it has boasted many famous names - John Mayall, Buddy Guy, Lucky Peterson, Rod Piazza, Jerry Portnoy, Duke Robillard, Otis Grand and many more have swelled the ranks of the acts taking part in this festival, which is unique of its kind. It has also been aided by live broadcasts on Canal Sur, Radio 3 and TVE's channel 2 or on their international channel.

The festival programme mixes performances with relaxed meetings with the blues stars during the opening party, when there is an excellent jamming session with professionals and fans playing together on the same stage, as well as master classes and audiences with the artists. This intimacy has created a unique character for the event, which offers an unparalleled programme of music, events and entertainment over the three days, in the delightful setting of Cazorla. There are five stages, only one of which you have to pay to enter.

Cazorla International Theatre Festival

One of the top attractions which begins in autumn and ends in winter is the international theatre festival in Cazorla. It is an annual event celebrating the performing arts, which is a showcase for the most cutting-edge theatre acts, whether in the street or on stage. The show begins in October with Cazorla de calle (street theatre), when for three days many and various companies of clowns, acrobats, puppeteers, fireworks and circus performers provide popular entertainment on the natural stage of the squares and streets of Cazorla. Next the indoor festival begins, with its special event for children, Teatrino, which is a breeding ground of many stars of the future. And finally there is the indoor theatre, a sell-out success with a full house in the Teatro de la Merced, which stages new plays, including some brand new first performances, as well as classic and avant-garde theatre, and all of these starring top-ranking names of the theatre.

The Cazorla International Theatre Festival prize has been awarded to Triciclo, Nuria Espert, Lola Herrera, Rafael Álvarez El Brujo, Rosa M<sup>a</sup> Sardá and Alonso de Santos, to quote but a few of the most renowned names of the national theatre scene. These actors have starred on stage alongside Juan Luis Galiardo, Gonzalo Suárez and the Centro Andaluz de Teatro. The festival has become an additional element of entertainment and tourism for those who love culture with a capital C!
